VIROLOGIA 2021

ABSTRACT SUBMISSION GUIDELINES

General Regulations for the presentation of Free Works

Presentations must be original papers, unpublished and have not been accepted for publication, nor published in national or international scientific journals

Abstracts must be submitted only through the online platform. The deadline for the reception is September 20, 2021 until 11:59 p.m (GMT-3). Submission after that date will not be received.

Abstracts for e-poster must be presented in Spanish, except for those works whose authors are non-Spanish-speaking foreigners, in which case they must be presented in English.

Authors must assign a General Subject Area and a Specific Area to the submitted work. Accepted e-posters must be submitted in video form (MP4). The scientific committee will also select abstracts for oral presentation.

All accepted abstracts will be published in the digital abstract book, with registration number (ISBN) which will be available on the congress website and the AAM website.

The number of works to present during the event will be limited. For this reason, it is suggested not to divide the results of the same experimental line into several presentations. Each author may submit up to 1 (one) abstract as the first author; however, they may participate as a co-author in other works.

Undergraduate and graduate students who present abstracts as the first author may request a Congress registration scholarship (see scholarship application).

The first author will be the person responsible for registration. After accepting the work, they will have to pay the registration fee to be able to send the e-poster (MP4).

Format for submitting and uploading abstracts

Title: It must be concise and must not exceed 250 characters with spaces included. It must be written in CAPITAL LETTER, in bold and avoid the use of abbreviations.

Authors: First and last names must be entered, not including titles and/or professions. Authors included in more than one abstract must be listed with the same last name and initials.

Affiliation: Each author must indicate his/her Affiliation.

Abstract body: It must include an introduction, objectives, materials and methods, results and conclusions, without including bibliographic references, tables or figures. Its extension (excluding title, authors and institutions) may contain up to 2,000 characters with spaces included. It is suggested to minimize the use of abbreviations and, if they are used, they should be clarified the first time they are cited. Check that the symbols entered are correctly loaded.

The evaluation of the work presented will be performed by expert juries in the chosen category. The decision of acceptance or rejection will be communicated by email.

Abstracts will be published exactly in the form in which they were sent. Each author must carefully check the spelling and syntax of the text. Once sent, there is NO option for further modifications. Also, by submitting the abstract, the authors assume the responsibility of having complied with all the bioethical norms required to carry out the work.
